

Biokinetics operates two full-service ballistic test laboratories housing state-of-the art firing, loading and velocity monitoring systems. We can launch bullets and fragmentation threats from 2 mm up 50 cal. for all types of ballistic testing related to body armour, vehicle and structural protection systems. Projectile and target interactions can be analyzed using high speed video, human body surrogates and a host of other devices developed specifically for human injury analysis.

{gallery}services/ballistics/images::::2{/gallery}

Testing is available to standard industry specifications or may be customized for specific programs. We have earned a reputation for providing confidential, reliable, high quality testing and evaluation services with excellent technical support. Whether it be personal body armour, ballistic headwear, vehicle or structural armour systems, our professional engineers and technicians are available for your research, development and testing needs.

Download PDF